

Sight-Reading Tutor—Artist's Statement.

I like to play guitar, but I could not read sheet music. I made this object in eight hours; it is, essentially, a set of flash cards that flip automatically.

I put it on the App store, for free. Why not?

According to the figures I get from Apple, Sight-Reading Tutor gets downloaded or updated about 50 times a week. In the 30 months it has been available, it has been downloaded about 10,000 times in the 30 or so countries in which Apple conducts its business.

I have received one email about Sight-Reading Tutor: "You have opened up a new world to me."

We professors love to hear that stuff.
